Submission: I have two simple propositions. 1. That the current 2008 Act serves no purpose and is an inadequate foundation upon which to build a comprehensive new Act. Therefore it should be rescinded. 2. Local government, by dint of its jurisdictional functions, plays a profoundly significant role in both climate mitigation and adaptation. It is therefore not only sensible, but critically important, for the new Act to specifically prescribe the roles, processes, responsibilities and relationships that would and should apply in the local government arena. This will be particularly true in the setting up of climate change agreements between sectors.
